an election bet. If the smile don't fetch the dark-eyed Cuban senoritas, the hat surely will.

Our old friend P. VanTrovinger, of fall on Van, thick and fast. He has without asking for a vote. If there is an honest, square-toed man in Kansas, it is P. VanTrovinger.

The many friends of Joseph Millham, death of John, his fourteen year old accident occurred on Monday a week ago, the interment taking place on the following Thursday.

On Wednesday afternoon, at half past one o'clock, in the presence of a number of friends who had been invited to witness the ceremony, James Harris Glenn was united in marriage to Miss Alice Eberington. The ceremony took place in the Baptist church, and was performed by the Rev. E. Clark. Immediately thereafter, the united pair left for Mr. Glenn's residence in Flora Township. In the evening an enjoyable time was had at E. W. Glenn's, a brother of the happy man.

James Harris Glenn is one of the solid farmers of Flora township. His large circle of friends will be pleased to learn of the good fortune which has befallen him. In possessing so amiable and intelligent a lady for a wife as is Miss Eberington. She has lived for many years past in this city, with her brother in-law and wife, Mr. and Mrs. John J.
Cooper, and has an extended acquaint-herself by her many graces of mind and heart. We wish them happiness and Death of Benjamin Crane.

It is but a short time ago that Benjamin Crane left the city to take up his future residence in Danville, Ill. On Monday morning last, Ralph McCormack, his son-in-law, received a telegram containing the sad intelligence of his death. Mrs. McCormack left on the noon train on the same day, to be present at the obsequies.

The deceased was one of our oldest and most respected citizens. The sudden news of his death has cast a gloom over the entire community. The many friends of the family have nothing but sympathy to offer the surviving relatives.

Mr. Crane, until the date of his departure for Danville, resided in this city since 1877, and was engaged in the grain business with his son Charles E., who recently died shortly after his arrival in Danville, where he had gone for the purpose of recovering his lost health.
He was a devout Christian, having for several years past officiated as one of the elders of the Presbyterian church.
He was born in Vermont, and at the time of his demise was 70 years of age.
Since his son's death he has been despondent, and seemed to take but little interest in anything. Without doubt the old gentleman was broken hearted over the death of his dearly loved son, and his death was hastened on that account. He leaves three children, Mrs.
McGee and Mrs. Lasure, of Danville, and Mrs. R. M. McCormack of this city.
The remains were interred in Danville on Tuesday afternoon last, alongside those of his wife and son.

Blue and Gray.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings of last week, the war drama of the "Blue and Gray" was given at the Bonebrake Opera House, to large and well pleased audiences, which were extremely liberal in their applause.
The scenic effects were good, while the tableaux at the close of each act were very fine, and never failed to elicit a hearty hand-clap. In the last two performances a colored quartette, composed of the four waiters at the Henry House, appeared in plantation songs and dances, and it is putting it mildly to say that they brought down the house. Another feature was the drill given by several of the members of Company D. The boys distinguished themselves by the excellent manner in which they performed the different movements.

Much credit is due to Major James T. Burton, the author of the drama, who assumed the principal character, Deitrick Vonderspeck. His facial expression was simply immense, and together with his Dutch brogue, kept the audience roaring with laughter. H.
L. Humphrey, as Col. St. Leon, acted the old man to perfection. Harry Pearson, assumed by C. S. Crawford, was given by that gentleman in a praiseworthy manner. The difficult part of the villain, Frank Duncan, was carried out in a creditable way by Henry Litts, while C. W. Mansfield as Harker, looked and acted the part of a cruel and relentless overseer in a style that caused the spectators to wish the tables were turned and the lash applied to him.
M. H. Curtis, as Uncle Ned, the old negro, was simply immense. His representation was perfectly natural and lifelike, and the audience showed their appreciation by frequent applause.

Frank Strother, as Sam, the "dandy coon," raised a laugh as soon as he stepped on the stage. His walk was "enough to make a horse laugh." Harry Barnes, as Teddy O'Connor, the Irish man, assumed the character perfectly, and got off the brogue and gestures like a true born son of the "owid sod." Mrs. C. W. Beach, as Maud St. Leon, acted the part in an easy and natural manner, which showed how perfectly acquainted she was with the stage. She was ably seconded by Miss Ida Scoggins as Mrs. St. Leon. W. W. Wilson, as "Shirley" White, W. E. Birchmore, as the General U. S. A., John Lancaster, as Col. Franklin, and M. T. Goss, as Alex. Bert, all did well in those minor characters.

A word about the orchestra, under the efficient leadership of that lightweight, Mike Barnes. They played in such an artistic manner as to fairly surprise the different audiences, which had no idea that such an excellent musical organization had been perfected.
We predict for the different members a warm appreciation of their efforts whenever they appear in public in the future.

charge of the music. Services to be programme is promised for next issue.

CURED AT LAST.

ABILENE, KS., Nov. 12, 1888.
My arm and hand was paralyzed, and I suffered untold pain in it for over a good results, until I went to the Kansas ducted by Dr. Oakwood. I am thankful to say that I am doing my own work
